WHAT TO EXPECT

We eat, drink and breathe microplastics.
Does that make us sick?

This conference brings you the state-of-the-art of research on micro- and nanoplastics and health.
Prominent scientists from all over the world will inform you about the latest findings in flamboyant short science talks.

- Get the first results of fifteen groundbreaking research pilots, that started early 2019, and more.
- Be witness of emerging evidence of known health effects from - by example - BPA, PFAS, phthalates and other chemical additives in plastics in our daily life.
- Learn more about global and EU policy opportunities and recommendations.
- Join the discussions during break-out sessions with representatives from big industry and influencers.

Be part of the change in the way we look at (micro & nano)plastics.
